

Searching ANZ Newsstand from home

ProQuest ANZ Newsstand contains full text articles from Australian and New Zealand newspapers.

You will need to register for a Readers Card with the State Library of NSW to access this database.

1. Getting into ANZ Newsstand

- Go to <http://www.sl.nsw.gov.au>
- From the homepage of the State Library's site click on Access databases from home

- Scroll down the list of databases to ProQuest Australia and New Zealand Newsstand and log in.

You will need to log in using your Readers Card number and password. If you have problems logging in read the Access from home FAQ.

2. Searching for newspapers articles

Type in your keywords using the connectors AND or OR. Use quotation marks for phrases or names eg "double jeopardy" or "sef gonzales".

Each hit will look like this.

The screenshot shows a ProQuest document view page. At the top, there are tabs for 'Basic', 'Advanced', 'Publications', and 'My Research'. Below the tabs, it says 'Databases selected: ProQuest ANZ Newsstand'. The main heading is 'Document View' with a '<< Back to Results' link and 'Document 1 of 4 Next >' text. There are 'Print' and 'Email' buttons, and a 'Mark Document' checkbox. The article title is 'NSW to end double jeopardy law' by Tom Iggulden, published in 'Lateline - Australian Broadcasting Corporation' on Sep 6, 2006. There are links for 'Jump to full text', 'Translate document into', and 'More Like This'. At the bottom, there are links for 'People' and 'Author(s)'. Three callout boxes provide instructions: one points to the 'Basic' tab, another points to the 'Back to Results' link, and a third points to the 'Jump to full text' link.

Some searching tips

- You can limit your search by date choosing a specific date or a date range.
- You can select More Search Options on the Basic search screen. This will allow you to:
 - choose a particular source eg Sydney Morning Herald
 - sort your results by relevance.
- If you get too many results it's a good idea to limit your search by using the option Look for terms in. Choose Citation and Abstract from the drop-down menu as this will give you articles that deal primarily with your subject, rather than just mentioning it.

3. To print or email

Click on the print or email buttons. If you are emailing choose ProQuest Standard

The screenshot shows the 'Email Document' form. It has a 'Citation style' dropdown menu set to 'ProQuest Standard'. There are three 'Format' options: 'Brief citation -citation and link', 'Document Summary -citation, indexing, abstract, and link', and 'Full text -citation, indexing, abstract, full text, and link'. There are two 'Send email as' options: 'HTML (not supported by all email programs)' and 'Plain text (compatible with all email programs)'. There are input fields for 'Your name', 'Email address', and 'Subject', and a 'Message' text area. A callout box points to the 'Citation style' dropdown menu.

Don't forget to

- click on Full text
- choose format
- enter your email address
